

Advertising research projects

Under certain circumstances, Changing Faces is pleased to advertise relevant academic research projects on our website, to facilitate recruitment of participants.

Disclaimer statement:

- Changing Faces recognises that academic research enables health and social care professionals to develop and improve the psychosocial support available to people who have disfigurements.
- Changing Faces has a strict policy regarding the research studies it publicises and each study is considered according to detailed criteria.
- Changing Faces cannot be held responsible for any emotional, psychological, or physical harm that might result from participation in a research study advertised on this website. Such ethical considerations are the responsibility of the research institution.
